CryoPort, Inc. (OTCBB: CYRX) is revolutionizing the shipping of frozen materials. Initially targeting the life sciences industry, CryoPort Express™ uses a time-saving, hassle-free process and a dry vapor liquid nitrogen container to provide important benefits over the traditional dry ice method of shipping. The Shipper, with its long holding time of 10+ days, along with an advanced ordering and tracking system, are essential components of the infrastructure for the delivery of temperature-sensitive biomaterials for laboratory testing in an increasingly complex and time-sensitive global environment. In January 2011 FedEx Corp. launched the FedEx® Deep Frozen Shipping Solution using the CryoPort Express® Dry Shipper. In addition, the international shipping and logistics firm DHL recently integrated its ordering and tracking systems with CryoPort, allowing DHL customers to directly order the Express Shipper. According to industry studies, CryoPort addresses a $400 million market, as approximately 4 million frozen and cryogenic shipments are made each year, with shipment volume growing at a rate of 12%.
