Evolv Express® Named “Best in Sports Technology” 2024 by Sports Business Journal

Leading AI-powered weapons detection system also named “Best in Fan Experience Technology.” Honors reinforce strong value proposition that is driving rapid adoption across professional and collegiate sports.

WALTHAM, Mass.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Evolv Technology (NASDAQ: EVLV), the leading security technology company pioneering AI-based weapons detection to create safer experiences, today announced that Evolv Express® received two significant awards from Sports Business Journal as part of that publication’s annual Tech Week event in New York City on Tuesday.

Express was first named the winner in the “Best in Fan Experience Technology” category, in which it was selected over finalists from NASCAR, the NBA, the NHL, and the United States Golf Association and a total pool of 97 submissions. Later, at the end of an awards ceremony attended by hundreds of executives, technologists, journalists, and other sports industry leaders, Express was further honored as the “Best in Sports Technology” for 2024. The second honor put Express first among a total of 34 nominees in six categories, which in turn, were drawn from 271 submissions. These companies ranged from early-stage start-ups to leading tech giants.

In both cases, Express was selected by a panel of some 30 industry experts representing the full diversity of the sports industry, including teams, leagues, vendors, and content creators. Criteria for selection included innovation, organizational excellence, industry influence, and leadership in sports technology. The ability of Express to help deliver a safe and seamless ingress experience for fans, even during the busiest of times, was noted as Express’ most positive impact on the industry.

“On behalf of all 300-plus Evolvers, it was my honor to step to the awards podium twice last night,” said John Baier, Evolv’s vice president of sports. “We’re especially delighted to accept these awards given the strength of the tech products and solutions being offered by all the nominees. Together, we’re pushing the industry forward rapidly and every nominee deserves recognition and congratulations.”

These honors are affirmation of Evolv’s strong sports industry value proposition, win-win business model, and comprehensive customer service. To date, Evolv Express is deployed at almost 50 major pro and collegiate sports venues in the United States and England. Evolv’s technology can also be found in leading theme parks, performing arts centers, casinos and arenas in addition to hundreds of schools, hospitals and places of worship.

Sports Business Journal (SBJ) is the sports industry’s business media source of record. In addition to its daily and weekly publications, SBJ organizes the industry’s leading conferences and events.
