WiSA technology was chosen for its support of wireless audio transmission of up to 8 channels of uncompressed 24-bit audio, including immersive audio formats like Dolby Atmos and DTS:X, as well as the tech's network performance offering superior latency over standard Bluetooth and Wi-Fi at just 5ms of lag time.

- Digital Trends Top Tech of CES 2019:

Klipsch Reference Wireless WiSA home theater system was recognized for its simple, high-resolution audio that can be easily transmitted from a growing number of devices, including LG TVs, PCs and Xboxes.

- 2019 Dealerscope IMPACT Awards: Editors' Choice:

Enclave Audio CineHome HD WiSA home theater system was highlighted for its wire free 5.1 home theater experience that is seamlessly assembled with the press of a button.

"The launch of the LG product lines and our partnerships with nine of the top speaker companies has already resulted in more industry recognition," said Brett Moyer, president and CEO of Summit Wireless Technologies. "We expect this to continue as we grow the WiSA ecosystem and expand our relationships with more top consumer electronics companies. In 2019, we're on track to see up to 60 million WiSA ReadyTM platforms* in the market and grow revenue. Overall, we are very encouraged by the growing recognition of our brand leadership and our mission to deliver wireless, multichannel audio capabilities and authentic concert-quality sound to homes everywhere."
