

COMPANY OVERVIEW

Oragenics, Inc. is a biotechnology company specializing in nasal drug delivery for neurological and rare diseases. The company's lead program, ONP-002, is an intranasal neurosteroid in development for the treatment of mild traumatic brain injury (mTBI), commonly known as concussion.

At the core of Oragenics' innovation is its proprietary intranasal drug delivery platform, designed to enhance bioavailability, precision targeting, and ease of administration. This technology enables efficient, non-invasive drug delivery to the brain, reducing systemic exposure and side effects. Beyond concussion, the platform has potential applications across a range of neurological conditions, including neurodegenerative diseases, acute brain injuries, and central nervous system disorders.

By integrating cutting-edge therapeutics with advanced drug delivery technology, Oragenics aims to transform the treatment landscape for brain-related health conditions, addressing significant unmet medical needs.
