In addition to the keynote, Ms. Stavola will be participating in two panel discussions: "Keeping the Glass Ceilings in the Greenhouses" and "Investing in Cannabis Stocks 101."

The Conference will feature successful women from leading cannabis companies throughout the United States and Canada. Discussions and presentations will focus on the various ways cannabis companies are implementing and supporting female leadership, as well as how the cannabis industry as a whole is facilitating a global health and wellness movement.

Ms. Stavola, a leading entrepreneur and pioneer in the cannabis industry, and a well-respected advocate for female empowerment, was recently ranked number one on the 2019 Cannabis Business Executive Power Women in Cannabis list.

"It is an honor to share my experience thus far in the cannabis industry," said Ms. Stavola. "My professional background includes many drawbacks, triumphs and lessons learned, and I am beyond grateful to share them with other executives in the industry. The cannabis industry is unique in that we are building it as we go, and it's through connecting and sharing our experiences that we can truly build something special that will have a positive impact on the lives of millions of people."
