James F. DeSocio, President & CEO of Intellinetics, stated, "We've discussed our direction and strategies in recent earnings and press releases, as well as at the 2019 Taglich Brothers investors conference in New York at the end of April, and I am more convinced than ever that this is the correct course. Our new direction and focus will work because we're becoming recognized as experts in the Human Service Provider, state and local government, and education markets we are serving, as well as delivering solutions that solve specific problems these organizations face. We have wins to support this conclusion, including a recent order for $174,000, among other, smaller successes."

"We had a tough revenue quarter in Q1, which was the result of our transition away from onpremise software towards more software-as-a-service, and the nature of revenue recognition. We are turning around this business with the focus on key markets and new solutions. There is still a lot of work ahead of us, but I am more than encouraged by the market responsiveness. We have great initiatives that are addressing specifics needs," DeSocio concluded.

Non-GAAP Financial Measure

Intellinetics uses non-GAAP Adjusted EBITDA as a supplemental measure of our performance that is not required by, or presented in accordance with, accounting principles generally accepted in the United States (GAAP).

A non-GAAP financial measure is a numerical measure of a company's financial performance that excludes or includes amounts so as to be different from the most directly comparable measure calculated and presented in accordance with GAAP in the statement of income, balance sheet or statement of cash flows of a company. Adjusted EBITDA is not a measurement of financial performance under GAAP and should not be considered as an alternative to net income, operating income, or any other performance measure derived in accordance with GAAP, or as an alternative to cash flow from operating activities or a measure of our liquidity. Intellinetics urges investors to review the reconciliation of non-GAAP Adjusted EBITDA to the comparable GAAP Net Loss, which is included in this press release, and not to rely on any single financial measure to evaluate Intellinetics' financial performance.

We believe that Adjusted EBITDA is a useful performance measure and is used by us to facilitate a comparison of our operating performance on a consistent basis from period-to-period and to provide for a more complete understanding of factors and trends affecting our business than measures under GAAP can provide alone. We define "Adjusted EBITDA" as earnings before interest expense, any income taxes, depreciation and amortization expense, and other non-cash expenses such as share-based compensation, note conversion warrant expense and other financing related transaction costs.
