This prestigious recognition, with Enovation Controls ranking #18 out of over 300 ranked companies, highlights the Company's commitment to fostering an inclusive and supportive workplace environment where women can thrive. The award reflects the Company's ongoing efforts toward creating equitable opportunities, developing talent, and promoting a culture of respect.

"We are incredibly proud of the Enovation Controls UK team for this achievement. This recognition underscores our dedication to diversity and inclusion across all our global operations. Creating a workplace where everyone feels valued and empowered is at the heart of our shared values, and this award is a testament to those efforts," said Sean Bagan, Interim President, Chief Executive Officer, and Chief Financial Officer of Helios.

"Workplaces are only great if they're great for all employees. For seven years, the UK's Best Workplaces for Women™ List has been paving the way by tackling discrimination, removing barriers to women's advancement in their careers, and challenging taboos. Importantly, each of the companies on the list have been commended by their own female employees through their anonymous feedback that told us their workplace has gone above and beyond to ensure that women employees are treated fairly in terms of recognition, training, and promotion opportunities," said Benedict Gautrey, Managing Director of Great Place to Work UK.

Helios remains steadfast in its commitment to cultivating a diverse and inclusive workforce across all its operating companies. The recognition of Enovation Controls as one of the UK's Best Workplaces for Women™ is a significant milestone in the Company's broader efforts to lead with integrity, inclusion, leadership, innovation and accountability.
