Central Garden & Pet is contributing $50,000 toward Lindsay Wildlife Experience's largest capital project in its 70-year history.

As part of this collaboration, Central employees participated in a volunteer day at Lindsay Wildlife Experience, contributing hands-on support to facility upkeep, habitat maintenance, and enrichment activities.

Central's portfolio of leading brands also provided in-kind donations to support the daily care of wildlife patients and educational programming. Ferry-Morse contributed native California wildflower seeds for educational activities supporting Lindsay's summer camp attendees. Kaytee, Zilla, and Aqueon supplied nutrition and care products for wild birds, small animals, and reptiles.

In addition to these efforts, Central is contributing $50,000 toward Lindsay Wildlife Experience's largest capital project in its 70-year history. The $2 million project includes six new aviaries housing seven raptor birds, children's play structures, and expanded educational opportunities, with completion expected by October 31, 2026.

"Supporting organizations like Lindsay Wildlife Experience aligns closely with our purpose of nurturing happy and healthy homes—for people and the animals they care about,” said Niko Lahanas, CEO of Central Garden & Pet, who grew up going on field trips to Lindsay Wildlife Experience. “By combining our employees’ time and passion with the resources of our brands, we’re proud to play a role in advancing wildlife conservation and education in our own backyard.”

“We’re incredibly grateful for Central Garden & Pet’s generous support and hands-on involvement,” said John Calender of Lindsay Wildlife Experience. “From the volunteer efforts to the thoughtful product donations, and Central’s $50,000 Falcon donor contribution toward our new aviaries project, this partnership directly enhances our ability to care for injured and orphaned wildlife while educating our community about the importance of protecting native species.”
