Anthony Giovinazzo, Chairman, stated,

"This year's shareholder meeting included the election of two recently appointed directors, Abigail Jenkins and Patrick Treanor. Along with myself and Allen Davidoff, XORTX's CEO, the XORTX board comprises an experienced biotech board with significant expertise in advancing clinical trials, the regulatory approval environment, commercialization, marketing and public company governance.

In addition to further bolstering the XORTX board of directors, this past year saw advancements in the Company's intellectual property portfolio and continued pioneering research studies in autosomal dominant polycystic kidney disease (ADPKD) sponsored by XORTX. These studies, along with the recent peer-reviewed research highlighting genetic factors are linked to kidney disease, not only support the Company's treatment approach but also deepens the understanding of ADPKD and may broaden therapeutic approaches for treatment. I look forward to further reporting on XORTX as the Company progresses."
