Full House Resorts Addresses Pojoaque Tribal Court Decision

LAS VEGAS--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- In light of the publicity circulating related to the Tribal Court decision in the matter of Randall Fine and Fine Consulting Inc., Full House Resorts (NYSE Amex US: FLL) is issuing its understanding and interpretation of the relationship with the Pueblo of Pojoaque, Buffalo Thunder, Inc. and Pojoaque Gaming, Inc.

Full House Resorts has a management contract with Buffalo Thunder, Inc. and Pojoaque Gaming, Inc. (the "Gaming Entities"), approved by the National Indian Gaming Commission, to operate the Pueblo's gaming facilities, Buffalo Thunder Casino, Cities of Gold Casino and Cities of Gold Sports Bar.

"We are quite happy to have Full House Resorts managing our casinos," said George Rivera, Governor of the Pueblo. "Their expertise and professionalism is apparent."

Based on legal advice, Full House's position is that none of the Gaming Entities are parties to the gaming license revocation appeal brought by Fine. The management contract is not a subject of that appeal. The decision on appeal merely addressed the propriety of the Gaming Commission revocation of Fine's gaming license. Fine has not made any claim against the Gaming Entities or Full House Resorts. There is no lawsuit to enforce Fine's consulting contract, nor, in the opinion of counsel, could there be as there is no waiver of the sovereign immunity enjoyed by the Pueblo and its business entities.

It is the opinion of Full House Resorts that nothing in the recent Tribal Court decision, which is the only judicial claim pending, interferes with or impacts Full House's management contract or relationship with the Pueblo, Buffalo Thunder or Cities of Gold.
