

Skilled Trade Jobs Are Booming in Pandemic Economy

PeopleReady Skilled Trades analysis finds strong growth in skilled trades over the past year and aims to connect people to in-demand work

TACOMA, Wash.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- While most job sectors have been hit hard by a pandemic-riddled economy and are seeing slow job growth or none at all, the skilled trades were booming across the nation during the past year. A recent analysis by the skilled trades division of PeopleReady found double- and even triple-digit growth in some skilled trades sectors. And the company is on a mission to connect people with these in-demand jobs.

According to the PeopleReady Skilled Trades' analysis, demand grew rapidly for many skilled trade jobs starting from the pandemic's onset in March 2020 through January 2021, including drywall finishers (100%) and tile and stone setters (94%). Other skilled trade areas where job postings have soared during this same period include roofer helpers (24%), glaziers (19%), carpenters (16%), bricklayer helpers (16%), drywall installers (12%), and skilled construction workers (11%). Altogether, PeopleReady Skilled Trades found nearly 400,000 jobs posted in the sector since March 2020.

"The skilled trades don't just hold strong in an economic downturn—but they are among the rare sectors that continue to experience significant growth in an unpredictable job market," said Jill Quinn, executive leader of PeopleReady Skilled Trades. "Our mission is to connect tradespeople and work. And, with such a high number of people looking for their next opportunity and so many skilled trades jobs available, this mission has never been more important."

With construction season just around the corner, the company expects to see an even higher demand for tradespeople in the workforce. According to the analysis, skilled trades job postings have soared in the last 30 days. Those jobs seeing the most postings are:

- Drywall finishers (300% increase in last 30 days)
- Tile and stone setters (79%)
- Boilermakers (78%)
- Cement masons and concrete finishers (70%)
- Painters for construction and maintenance (69%)
