Y Combinator Recognizes Weave as a Top-Performing Company

Weave joins small business SaaS leaders Stripe, Gusto, and Human Interest in roundup of high-growth companies

LEHI, Utah--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Weave (NYSE: WEAV), the all-in-one customer communication platform for small business, has been named to Y Combinator's Top Companies 2022. This list is a compilation of the top-performing companies that have gone through Y Combinator and are valued at over $150 million. Weave was the first Utah company to go through Y Combinator, a startup funding boot camp, in 2014.

"Weave's growth, TAM and market opportunity are incredibly compelling, even as we approach almost a decade since the company participated in Y Combinator," said Weave CEO Roy Banks. "Our customer obsession and people first culture are vital to our next era of growth as a public company on the New York Stock Exchange. I hope to see more Y Combinator alumni join us in the public markets soon."

Over 3,000 companies, worth more than $400 billion, have gone through Y Combinator's boot camp. Companies named to the YC Top Companies of 2022 have seen high growth and have reached a valuation of over $150 million.

Weave has helped over 20,000 small businesses unify, modernize, and personalize every customer interaction. With a brand new six-story headquarters in the heart of Silicon Slopes and their recent hiring expansion into India, Weave continues to grow and bring technology to small business everywhere.
