Joby Aviation Announces Proposed Offerings of Common Stock and Convertible Senior Notes

SANTA CRUZ, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Joby Aviation, Inc. (NYSE: JOBY), a company developing electric air taxis for commercial passenger service, today announced its intention to offer, subject to market and other conditions, (i) convertible senior notes due 2032 (the “notes”) (such offering, the “note offering”) and (ii) shares of its common stock, $0.0001 par value per share (the “common stock”) (such offering, the “common stock offering”). The aggregate proceeds from the offerings are anticipated to be $1,000,000,000. Concurrently with the note offering and the common stock offering, Morgan Stanley intends to offer, acting on behalf of itself and/or its affiliates, a number of shares of Joby’s common stock, borrowed from third parties (such offering, the “delta offering”), to facilitate hedging transactions (whether physical sales and/or through privately negotiated derivatives transactions) by some of the investors of the notes. The number of shares of common stock subject to the delta offering will be determined at the time of pricing of the delta offering and is expected to be no greater than commercially reasonable initial short positions of such hedging investors in the notes. No new shares of common stock will be issued in the delta offering, and Joby will not receive any proceeds from the delta offering. The note offering, the common stock offering and the delta offering are being made in separate public offerings registered under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended. Joby also expects to grant the underwriters of the note offering a 30-day option to purchase additional notes solely to cover over-allotments and expects to grant the underwriters of the common stock offering a 30-day option to purchase additional common stock. The completion of the note offering will not be contingent on the completion of the common stock offering, and the completion of the common stock offering will not be contingent on the completion of the note offering or the completion of the delta offering. The delta offering and the note offering are contingent upon one another. The completion of the delta offering is not contingent on the completion of the common stock offering.

Morgan Stanley, Allen & Company LLC and BofA Securities are acting as joint book-running managers for the common stock offering. Morgan Stanley, BofA Securities, Allen & Company LLC and Goldman Sachs & Co. LLC are acting as joint book-running managers for the note offering. Morgan Stanley is acting as sole book-running manager for the delta offering. ICR Capital LLC is acting as Joby’s financial advisor for the note offering.

Convertible Senior Notes Offering

The notes will be senior, unsecured obligations of Joby, will accrue interest payable semi-annually in arrears and will mature on February 15, 2032, unless earlier repurchased, redeemed or converted. Noteholders will have the right to convert their notes in certain circumstances and during specified periods. Joby will settle conversions by paying or delivering, as applicable, cash, shares of its common stock or a combination of cash and shares of its common stock, at Joby's election.

The notes will be redeemable, in whole or in part (subject to certain limitations), for cash at Joby's option at any time, and from time to time, on or after February 20, 2029 and on or before the 26th scheduled trading day immediately before the maturity date, but only if the last reported sale price per share of Joby's common stock exceeds 130% of the conversion price for a specified period of time. The redemption price will be equal to the principal amount of the notes to be redeemed, plus accrued and unpaid interest, if any, to, but excluding, the redemption date.

If certain corporate events that constitute a "fundamental change" occur, then, subject to a limited exception, noteholders may require Joby to repurchase their notes for cash. The repurchase price will be equal to the principal amount of the notes to be repurchased, plus accrued and unpaid interest, if any, to, but excluding, the applicable repurchase date.

The interest rate, initial conversion rate and other terms of the notes will be determined at the pricing of the note offering.

Use of Proceeds

Joby intends to use a portion of the net proceeds from the note offering to fund the cost of entering into the capped call transactions described below. Joby intends to use the remainder of the net proceeds from the note offering, together with the net proceeds from the common stock offering, existing cash, cash equivalents and short-term investments, to fund its certification and manufacturing efforts, prepare for commercial operations and for general working capital and other general corporate purposes. If the underwriters of the note offering exercise their over-allotment option to purchase additional notes, then Joby intends to use a portion of the additional net proceeds from the note offering to fund the cost of entering into additional capped call transactions as described below. Joby will not receive any proceeds from the delta offering.

Capped Call

In connection with the pricing of the notes, Joby expects to enter into privately negotiated capped call transactions with one or more of the underwriters of the note offering and/or their affiliates and/or one or more other financial institutions (the "option counterparties"). The capped call transactions are expected generally to reduce the potential dilution to Joby's common stock upon any conversion of the notes and/or offset any potential cash payments Joby is required to make in excess of the principal amount of converted notes, as the case may be, with such reduction and/or offset subject to a cap.

Joby has been advised that, in connection with establishing their initial hedges of the capped call transactions, the option counterparties or their respective affiliates expect to enter into various derivative transactions with respect to Joby's common stock concurrently with or shortly after the pricing of the notes. This activity could increase (or reduce the size of any decrease in) the market price of Joby's common stock or the notes at that time.

In addition, the option counterparties or their respective affiliates may modify their hedge positions by entering into or unwinding various derivatives with respect to Joby's common stock and/or purchasing or selling Joby's common stock or other securities of Joby in secondary market transactions following the pricing of the notes and prior to the maturity of the notes (and are likely to do so (x) on each exercise date for the capped call transactions, which is in each case expected to occur on each trading day during the 25 trading day period beginning on the 26th scheduled trading day prior to the maturity date of the notes and (y) following any early conversion of the notes, any repurchase of the notes by Joby on any fundamental change repurchase date, any redemption date or any other date on which Joby retires any notes, in each case if Joby exercises its option to terminate the relevant portion of the capped call transactions). This activity could also cause or avoid an increase or a decrease in the market price of Joby's common stock or the notes, which could affect a noteholder's ability to convert its notes, and, to the extent the activity occurs following conversion or during any observation period related to a conversion of notes, it could affect the amount and value of the consideration that noteholders will receive upon conversion of the notes.
