Hostopia Launches New Email and Webmail Platform

SHOREVIEW, Minn., Sept. 29 /PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- Hostopia, a business unit of Deluxe Corporation (NYSE: DLX), announced today that it has upgraded its 3 million email users to its latest version of Webmail 5 as well as a new, enhanced version of its EasyMail(TM) administrator control panel.

Today, Hostopia is the exclusive provider of email services to customers of more than 330 service providers, including global telecoms, cable operators, ISPs and hosting companies. Each of these providers and their millions of end-users, are either using, or have immediate access to the new version.

"This email system development exemplifies the benefits of a true, cloud-based SaaS system," said Paul D. Engels, Hostopia's chief marketing officer. "Rather than planning through months of expensive and disruptive software and hardware updates, we simply develop, test and propagate updates to the cloud. Our users wake up the next morning to an all-new and improved feature experience - without paying a cent in project or new licensing fees."

Hostopia's new Webmail 5 with EasyMail(TM) features:

- Ajax-based system that allows full drag-and-drop of email items
- Calendar events for an intuitive desktop feel
- Interface that mirrors desktop applications while being entirely web-based
- "Infinite scroll" feature allows instantaneous review of large inboxes
- Increased standard storage
- Capability to launch collaboration features such as calendar sharing and SyncSuite which allows users to synchronize contact lists, calendars and tasks between their desktop, internet and mobility devices
- Help messages and guided wizards via graphics and animation

- Auto-detect and set up user mail preferences
