QuickLogic Announces Partnership with CTG to Strengthen Aerospace & Defense Supply Chain

- Embedded FPGAs (eFPGAs) Deliver Custom Solutions, Cost Savings, and Efficiency for Aerospace and Defense

SAN JOSE, Calif., Aug. 7, 2024 /PRNewswire/ -- QuickLogic Corporation (NASDAQ: QUIK), a leader in embedded FPGA (eFPGA) Hard IP, ruggedized FPGAs and endpoint AI solutions, today announced a new strategic partnership with CTG, a division of Blue Raven Solutions. CTG has been appointed the sole source distributor for QuickLogic's eFPGA Hard IP in the Aerospace & Defense sector. QuickLogic eFPGA IP technology enables developers of ruggedized SoCs & ASICs to embed field reprogrammability that meets program-specific technical requirements.

"CTG's proven experience and established network will be invaluable in connecting our eFPGA IP solutions with key players in the aerospace and defense industry," said Owen Bateman, VP of Worldwide Sales at QuickLogic. "Our partnership ensures this sector has access to our programmable logic and custom eFPGA IP cores for mission critical applications."

"We are excited to offer an innovative solution that proactively addresses obsolescence challenges," said Mike Boyd, CTG President. "This technology empowers our defense and aerospace customers to customize their systems to meet specific requirements, enhancing flexibility and adaptability in mission-critical applications and overcoming lifecycle management challenges."

QuickLogic's eFPGA IP solutions provide unique advantages for aerospace and defense applications. By offering programmable logic and custom eFPGA IP cores, QuickLogic enables customers to tailor solutions to specific requirements, reduce system costs, extend product lifecycles, and lower power consumption.

About QuickLogic
