Point and Redwood Trust Announce Issuance of $146 Million Home Equity Investment Securitization

First Securitization Backed Entirely by Home Equity Investments (HEIs) Marks Major Milestone for Rapidly Growing Asset Class

PALO ALTO, Calif. and MILL VALLEY, Calif., Oct. 12, 2021 /PRNewswire/ --Point, a leading financial technology platform that allows homeowners to unlock home equity wealth, and Redwood Trust, Inc. (NYSE: RWT), a leader in expanding access to housing for homebuyers and renters, today announced they have completed the first ever securitization backed entirely by residential Home Equity Investment ("HEI") agreements, issuing approximately $146 million of asset backed securities. The transaction, Point Securitization Trust 2021-1, closed on September 23, 2021. Co-sponsoring the transaction with a subsidiary of Redwood, Point was the originator of all the HEIs in the securitization and will continue to service the assets.

This inaugural transaction opens a new door for investors to access one of the largest investable markets in the world

The securitization is structured as approximately $120 million of unrated senior class A-1 securities and approximately $26 million of unrated class A-2 securities. Nomura Securities International Inc. was sole-structuring agent and sole-bookrunner for the issuance.

"Homeowners across the country are turning to Home Equity Investments ("HEIs") in record numbers to unlock more than $20 trillion in illiquid wealth tied up in their homes," said Eddie Lim, co-founder and CEO of Point. "This first-of-its-kind securitization is a testament to the investments we've made in Point's technology platform, homeowner education, and seamless execution. By providing liquidity to existing investors and access to HEIs for new investors, the securitization will be instrumental in making it possible for Point to help more homeowners improve their financial health."

Prior to this securitization, investors relied on fund vehicles and forward flow purchasing agreements to deploy capital in the HEI asset class. This securitization structure signifies greater liquidity for issuers and unique access to assets for end investors.

Bo Stern, Head of Portfolio Strategy and Risk for Redwood Trust, said, "We are excited to co-sponsor the first Home Equity Investment securitization. This inaugural transaction opens a new door for investors to access one of the largest investable markets in the world, while enabling homeowners to participate in the benefits of home price appreciation without having to sell their homes. HEIs also represent a sizable new market opportunity for Redwood as we continue to evolve and diversify our revenue sources and disrupt the housing market. Our collaboration with Point furthers our continued ability to drive innovative technology within housing finance and to create more financing alternatives for homeowners."

HEIs are an important new type of shared equity financing for homeowners and have gained significant traction in recent years. Homeowners ascribe value to not facing a monthly repayment obligation and the risk-sharing structure allows investors and homeowners to share in home price changes. Housing economists have advanced the case for HEIs as drivers of housing finance stability for many years.
