Part-Time and Flexible Job Options as Parents Return to Work: Half a Million Jobs Posted in Last 30 Days

New PeopleReady analysis shows increased demand for roles outside traditional full-time employment

TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 25, 2022 /PRNewswire/ -- As rising inflation continues to affect the country, parents looking to work while their children attend school have plenty of opportunities to make extra money on their own schedule. U.S. employers posted a record number of job openings for part-time and flexible hours, according to a new analysis by staffing giant PeopleReady.

New PeopleReady analysis shows increased demand for roles outside traditional full-time employment

The number of job postings that reference part-time and flexible hours has jumped 26% year over year, with some roles seeing a triple-digit percentage increase. In the last 30 days alone, there have been over half a million new unique postings for these roles.

There are nearly four million fewer workers in the labor force than before the beginning of the pandemic, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Meanwhile, women are participating in the labor force at the lowest rates since the 1970s, largely due to childcare responsibilities, health and safety concerns, and lack of scheduling flexibility.

"As summer winds down and a new school year is on the horizon, parents who are looking for jobs to support their families will find a variety of options available," said Taryn Owen, president and COO, PeopleReady and PeopleScout. "Jobs with part-time and flexible hours offer opportunity to those who may not otherwise be able to enter the workforce due to school schedules, caretaking responsibilities and other factors that may prevent full-time employment."

The top jobs offering part-time and flexible hours over the last 30 days include:

- Retail salespersons: 32,758
- Fast food and counter workers: 22,668
- Waiters and waitresses: 13,421

- Customer service representatives: 12,992
- Janitors and cleaners: 11,143
- Cashiers: 9,819
- Laborers and freight, stock, and material movers: 7,180
- Stockers and order fillers: 6,462
- Hotel, Motel, and Resort Desk Clerks: 5,968
