Huntington Bank Opens First North Carolina Branch in Charlotte's SouthPark Area

Opening marks the second of a 55-branch buildout in the Carolinas over three years

CHARLOTTE, N.C., May 12, 2025 /PRNewswire/ -- The Huntington National Bank (Huntington) has officially opened its first North Carolina branch at 6700 Fairview Road, Suite 113, in Charlotte's SouthPark area. The full-service branch will begin serving customers with tellers, personal and private bankers and ATMs.

A Wealth Hub – conveniently located in the building – will offer personalized wealth management and comprehensive financial services.

"Huntington's expansion in North Carolina is a key part of our strategy to bring our full franchise to high-growth markets," said Brant Standridge, President of Consumer and Regional Banking. "Establishing a physical branch network in the Carolinas reinforces our long-term commitment to our communities. We're excited to deliver our full suite of personal, wealth, business, and commercial banking capabilities to customers across this dynamic region."

The SouthPark branch is part of Huntington's broader strategy to add approximately 55 branches and hire more than 350 colleagues across North and South Carolina over the next three years. This expansion builds upon the bank's Commercial Banking growth in the Carolinas and the opening of its regional headquarters in Charlotte.

"What sets Huntington apart is our people-first approach, we show up with personalized service, a deep commitment to the community, and the resources to support customers through every stage of their financial journey," said Heath Campbell, Regional President for the Carolinas.

The next North Carolina branch opening is set for Charlotte's South End area in September.
