Both players will give listeners an insider's perspective as they prepare for tournaments, and will discuss equipment, courses around the world, their competitors in the field and the headline news happening in the world of golf. An announcement with more details, including both shows' launch dates and airtimes, will be made in the coming weeks.

"This has been an incredibly thrilling year for me, truly a dream season," said Stenson. "I'm looking forward to being on SiriusXM and sharing my thoughts on golf and my unique experiences around the world. It will be fun to bring my listeners along for the ride and give them an unvarnished look at life on and off the course."

"Those who know me know I've never been shy about sharing my opinions," said Poulter. "Now to have my own national radio show on SiriusXM will be great fun. We'll cover all sort of topics from golf to fashion to Ferraris, and we'll dive into my other interests off the course too, like Formula One and my favorite football club, Arsenal."

"Henrik and Ian are two of the brightest stars in professional golf," said Scott Greenstein, SiriusXM's President and Chief Content Officer. "Henrik's 2013 season was one of the biggest success stories in all of sports, and Ian's consistent success and his clutch Ryder Cup play, not to mention the colorful hues of his wardrobe and his penchant for social media, have made him a fan favorite. We're very excited to welcome them to SiriusXM PGA TOUR Radio, where they'll offer our listeners unique and enlightening insights into the TOUR and their lives."

Stenson enjoyed a remarkable 2013 season which saw him become the first golfer to claim both the FedExCup and the European Tour's Race to Dubai title in the same season. His success in the U.S. and abroad brought him from the 53rd ranked golfer at the start of the year to his current position of #3 in the Official World Golf Ranking. His eight top 10 finishes were highlighted by victories in the Deutsche Bank Championship and TOUR Championship by Coca-Cola – both FedExCup Playoff events – as well as a runner-up finish in The Open Championship, a third place finish in the PGA Championship and a top five finish in THE PLAYERS Championship. Last weekend he outlasted Poulter to win the season-ending DP World Tour Championship and cement his place as the #1 European player in 2013.

Poulter is a two-time World Golf Championships tournament winner and is one of the best Ryder Cup players in recent memory. Most recently, during the 2012 Ryder Cup, Poulter won all four of his matches and was one of the key figures that led the European team's stunning comeback victory over the Americans. He also played well and figured prominently in the 2004, 2008 and 2010 Ryder Cup competitions, winning eight of the 11 matches he played in over that time. In 2012, in addition to his first place finish in the World Golf Championships–HSBC Champions event, Poulter finished in the top 10 in three of the four major championships (The Masters, The Open Championship, the PGA Championship). This past season he recorded four top 10 finishes, including third at The Open Championship.

Launched in 2005, SiriusXM PGA TOUR Radio offers listeners nationwide live play-by-play coverage of PGA TOUR events as well as major championship tournaments, plus live call-in talk shows offering news, analysis, equipment reviews and more.
