Legacy Education Recognized for Excellence in Community Impact and Student Support

LANCASTER, Calif., Oct. 7, 2025 /PRNewswire/ -- Legacy Education Inc. ("Legacy Education" or the "Company") (NYSE American: LGCY), a leading provider of career education healthcare programs, proudly announces two significant recognitions that highlight the Company's impact on students, communities, and the education sector at large.

Legacy Education Receives Community Impact Award from CECU

Legacy Education was selected as the recipient of the 2025 Community Impact Award from the Career Education Colleges and Universities ("CECU"). This award honors institutions that demonstrate exceptional commitment to serving their local communities through innovative partnerships, student engagement, and initiatives that extend beyond the classroom.

From blood drives and healthcare clinics to scholarship opportunities and community service projects, Legacy Education's six campuses across California have created lasting, positive change in the regions they serve. Learn more about these initiatives at legacyed.com/community-impact.

"We are deeply honored to receive the Community Impact Award," said LeeAnn Rohmann, CEO of Legacy Education. "Our mission goes beyond career preparation. We aim to empower our students to contribute meaningfully to their communities. This recognition reflects the passion of our faculty, staff, and students who make community engagement a cornerstone of the Legacy experience."

Legacy Education Leader Recognized with Norma Ford Financial Aid Professional of the Year Award

In addition, Claudia Barajas, Corporate Director of Financial Aid Operations at Legacy Education, has been named the 2025 Norma Ford Financial Aid Professional of the Year by the California Association of Private Postsecondary Schools ("CAPPS").

The award honors the legacy of Norma Ford, a deeply respected financial aid leader who dedicated nearly three decades to supporting students and mentoring professionals in the sector. Each year, CAPPS presents this award to an individual who exemplifies Norma's values of excellence, integrity, and service.

Barajas, who has spent close to three decades guiding students through the financial aid process, was recognized for her leadership, expertise, and unwavering dedication to ensuring students have the resources and support they need to achieve their educational goals.

"Claudia is a true champion for students," said Rohmann. "Her compassion, knowledge, and leadership embody the very spirit of the Norma Ford Award. We are proud to see her receive this well-deserved recognition."
