Ingram Micro Canada Promotes Mark Snider to Senior Vice President

Canadian Channel Chief Recognized for His Continued Leadership, Innovation, Partner Advocacy and Success

MISSISSAUGA, ON -- (Marketwired) -- 12/31/14 -- Ingram Micro Inc. (NYSE: IM) today announced the promotion of Mark Snider to Senior Vice President and General Manager, Ingram Micro Canada.

"For nearly seven years Mark has successfully led the Canadian business, transforming it into a large and significant contributor to Ingram Micro's global operations," says Paul Bay, president, North America, Ingram Micro Technology Solutions. "We are pleased to recognize Mark's leadership, innovation and relentless dedication to our channel partners and associates within Canada and across North America."

Under Snider's guidance, Ingram Micro expanded its relationships in Canada with several key vendors including Cisco, Citrix, DELL, HP, Intel, Lenovo, Microsoft, and Samsung, and welcomed a significant number of new vendors in 2014. The team also successfully integrated several of its business units, creating a comprehensive portfolio of solutions, services and support resources for its Canadian channel partners who specialize and support advanced technologies, cloud, consumer electronics and retail, digital signage, data capture/point of sale and mobility solutions and services.

In 2014, the Ingram Micro VentureTech Network (VTN) inducted Snider into the VTN Hall of Fame. The prestigious recognition is the highest honor an executive or member of VTN can receive from the elite partner community.

"Mark is a strong leader who has earned the trust and admiration of channel partners throughout North America by listening to our needs, understanding our businesses and helping us to strategically align with Ingram Micro, our peers and our vendor partners to build a more successful business," says Jason Gorjan, vice president of Central Microsystems and co-president of Ingram Micro's VTN community.
