Eastern Michigan University Announces Launch of Non-Credit Pilot Offering with Amesite, Inc.

YPSILANTI, Mich., Feb. 28, 2019 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Eastern Michigan University Professional Programs and Training (EMU PPAT), part of Engage@EMU, announced its plan to launch a new online, non-credit course offering with Amesite Inc., an artificial intelligence software company based in Ann Arbor, MI.

The new pilot is Lean Six Sigma for Health Care, a 12-week professional program offering 4.5 Continuing Education Units (CEUs). EMU PPAT offers an array of industry-recognized training, continuing education and certification prep programs to help students and employees of regional businesses and beyond develop their skills and knowledge. The PPAT team offers practical, process-based instruction in multiple industries for professionals (emich.edu/ppat).

Eastern Michigan University Director of Business Engagement and Non-Credit Initiatives, Elizabeth Stoner said, "We constantly seek innovative solutions to offer high quality, non-credit instruction. We are pleased to partner with Amesite to launch this pilot offering in health care, one of the fastest growing sectors in the economy."

Amesite CEO, Dr. Ann Marie Sastry, said "We are excited to partner with Eastern Michigan University and the PPAT team to offer the Lean Six Sigma for Health Care program, given the need in Michigan to strengthen its numbers in the health care workforce. Statistical methods have a role to play in improving care, and we are pleased to help make an impact with EMU."

The pilot offering of Lean Six Sigma for Health Care begins April 1, 2019. For more information or to enroll, visit www.amesite.com/lean-six-sigma-for-healthcare or contact ppat@emich.edu.
