Professional Diversity Network Releases Letter from CEO to Shareholders

CHICAGO, March 27, 2017 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Professional Diversity Network, Inc. ("PDN" or "the Company") (NASDAQ:IPDN) today released a letter from its CEO to its shareholders.

Dear PDN Shareholders,

Last year I led a group of investors who purchased a controlling interest in Professional Diversity Network, Inc. In December of 2016 the Company's Board of Directors appointed me CEO and directed me to profitably grow our revenues. I recently presented at the Roth Conference in California to share my vision for the Company. My goal now is to inform you about myself and share my future plans for the Company.

For those of you who have not met me, I would like to share the following important items:

- The company participated in the Roth Conference in order to introduce me to investors and introduce my plan for the Company's future. We are not seeking additional capital, and fund-raising was not part of our agenda at the Roth Conference.
- When our group invested in PDN, we did so after an extensive search for companies that could help us establish commercial operations in China to deliver education, training and networking services to affluent Chinese people.
- One of the reasons we selected PDN was because of its employees and management team. We have intentionally kept the senior managers in place since we invested in the Company. While PDN's former CFO left at the end of 2016, he did so in order to pursue an opportunity to become COO of another company, and he remains PDN's good friend. Ultimately, we conducted an extensive search and interview process and replaced him. All other senior management remains in place. We transitioned the Company's former CEO to become the CEO of the NAPW division, as that was her former position and it was always my intent to become the PDN CEO following our investment.
- I am prepared, qualified and well suited to lead the Company. My professional experienced includes being a respected and qualified attorney who is licensed in good standing. Upon my appointment as PDN CEO, I resigned from my previous position where I was a senior executive of GNET, a Chinese company in good standing that specializes in on- and offline commercial activity.
- Our investment process included our voluntary submission to the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States (CFIUS). We were successfully cleared by CFIUS to invest in PDN and our funding was subject to regulatory clearance under the Patriot Act.

Let me be very clear – my goal is to create shareholder value in an honest, transparent and compliant manner. We believe PDN is well-positioned as our platform to conduct business operations in both China and the United States. We began commercial operations in China on March 25th, with an education and training event that drew over 2,000 paying participants. In the near future we will communicate further regarding our initial event in China and our 2017 plans for ongoing expansion into China.

We understand that we have a lot of hard work ahead and that we need to drive success as hard as possible. I am fully committed to creating success for the Company, its employees and, most importantly, our shareholders.

Sincerely,

Michael Wang, CEO
