Leading Independent Proxy Advisory Firm ISS Recommends that Texas Pacific Land Trust Shareholders Vote the BLUE Card FOR General Don Cook

DALLAS--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Texas Pacific Land Trust (NYSE:TPL) ("TPL" or the "Trust") today announced that Institutional Shareholder Services ("ISS"), a leading independent proxy advisory firm whose recommendations are followed by hundreds of institutional investors, has recommended that TPL shareholders vote FOR retired four-star General Donald "Don" G. Cook using the BLUE proxy card.

"We are pleased that ISS recognizes that General Cook has the experience, judgment and vision to continue the Trust's record of value creation and ensure that the Trust has the right corporate governance for its next chapter," said Trustee David E. Barry. "We encourage all shareholders to follow the ISS recommendation by returning the BLUE proxy card to vote FOR General Cook and discarding the dissident group's white proxy card."

In its May 7, 2019 report, ISS stated¹ that General Cook has:

"... a public track record that seems to reflect direct efforts to improve the governance of the companies on whose boards he has served. Cook brings substantial experience as a public company board member, as well as chairman of the San Antonio chapter of the National Association of Corporate Directors. In fact, he appears to have played an integral part in the effort to de-classify the board of Crane [Co]. At Crane's first annual meeting after Cook became the chairman of the Nominating and Governance Committee, the company granted shareholders a vote on whether to de-classify its board, which shareholders approved. Cook's track record appears to reflect a willingness and ability to push for corporate governance changes that benefit shareholders."

ISS particularly noted that, "Cook has pledged publicly to serve as a change agent for TPL's corporate governance, including resigning as a trustee after no more than three years, to allow shareholders to evaluate his performance and determine whether to retain him."

Comparing General Cook to the dissident nominee Eric Oliver, ISS observed that:

"Perhaps the most meaningful criticism of the dissident is the fact that though its strongest argument revolves around TPL's governance shortcomings, its nominee has no public corporate governance track record at a company in any way comparable to TPL."

“... there seem to be fewer concerns regarding Cook's public record than that of the dissident nominee, particularly in regard to potential conflicts of interest. On balance, Cook's public record as a director suggests that his experience and abilities may be more suited to drive changes that may be needed at TPL.”

ISS noted that:

For the five years ending on the unaffected date of March 14, 2019, the last day before the dissident announced its intent to nominate Oliver, TPL delivered TSR well above any of the peers. For every time period ending on the unaffected date, TPL's TSR far exceeded the peer median and an industry benchmark, the S&P Oil & Gas E&P Select Industry Index.

Crediting TPL management “for the strong TSR that TPL has generated,” ISS cited as one example the formation of Texas Pacific Water Resources in June 2017:

“Forming this company has increased TPL's ability to generate revenue from the surface acres it owns and their accompanying water rights. This strategically sound decision was enhanced by TPL's ability to persuade two former executives from EOG Resources, a well-respected E&P company, to lead this division.”

ISS concluded that:

“... nominee Cook – who has publicly acknowledged the need for TPL's governance to evolve and has committed to resigning within three years so that shareholders can assess his performance and vote on his potential reelection – appears to have more relevant experience than the dissident nominee as a public company director, particularly in the area of corporate governance. Therefore, a vote FOR nominee Cook on the management (BLUE) card is warranted.”
