Clearlake Capital-Backed Janus International Acquires Steel Storage Australasia

Acquisition Expands the Global Availability of Janus' Automated Product Suite Focused on Smart Entry, Electronic Access Control, Doors, Hallways and Mobile Storage Solutions

TEMPLE, Ga., Jan. 16, 2020 /PRNewswire/ -- Janus International Group, LLC ("Janus"), the leading global supplier of turn-key building solutions focused on a product suite of automated smart access control products and technologies for the self-storage and commercial industries, today announced it has acquired Steel Storage Australasia, a premier provider of self-storage design and construction solutions serving the Australasian market. Financial terms of the transaction were not disclosed.

In addition to design solutions, Brisbane, Australia-based Steel Storage Australasia provides doors, lockers, partition systems, single and multi-story self-storage building solutions, mezzanine and flooring systems to the Australian self-storage market.

Ramey Jackson, CEO of Janus International, said, "We're very excited to have Steel Storage Australasia join the Janus family. This addition further solidifies Janus as a truly global turn-key solutions provider for the self-storage industry. The acquisition also positions our group of companies to meet rapidly increasing demand for Janus' products and technologies in the Australian market, including our mobile storage solutions and our Nokē[®] Smart Entry system."

"Janus continues to show strong growth both organically and through disciplined, targeted acquisitions like Steel Storage Australasia, a transaction that will add significant market opportunities for Janus' existing solutions," said José E. Feliciano, Managing Partner and Co-Founder and Colin Leonard, Partner, Clearlake. "We are excited about the opportunities that lie ahead for Janus and we remain committed to supporting the company through our resources, relationships and the power of our O.P.S.[®] framework."
