NEW YORK – June 6, 2022 --SiriusXM announced that starting today, veteran journalist Steve Scully will host a new program on its bipartisan political channel. The Briefing with Steve Scully will air weekdays from 12-2 p.m. ET on SiriusXM's P.O.T.U.S. channel 124.

On his new SiriusXM show, Scully – Senior Vice President at Washington, D.C.'s Bipartisan Policy Center – will take listeners inside the stories and conversations that are shaping the day in the nation's capital. From breaking Supreme Court rulings to debates in Congress and briefings from The White House, the program will consider all sides and every perspective, helping listeners stay on top of what's happening within the Beltway and beyond. Scully, who has interviewed every president since Gerald Ford, also will speak with key politicians and newsmakers, as well as connect with listeners about important topics on their minds.

"I am thrilled to join the SiriusXM P.O.T.U.S. family to share my enthusiasm for politics and public policy with a very smart audience," Scully stated. "I look forward not only to focusing on the developing stories of the day, but also to giving listeners a deeper context to complex issues. Together, we will peel back the layers of stories to provide new information with elected officials, key policy makers and leading journalists."

In addition to his radio show, Scully will host regular events in collaboration with the Bipartisan Policy Center, where he currently serves as Senior Vice President. These forums, which will air on P.O.T.U.S., will encourage fierce debate while also seeking common ground for practical results that will enact real, positive changes for the country.
