In a statement, Isa Nakazawa said: "This show is my love letter to the wise celestial intelligence alive within all of us. I am honored to be part of a long lineage of astrologers and ordinary people who feel moved by the beauty and mystery of the cosmos. Astrology has much more to offer us than stereotypes. It is my hope that this show reveals how our birth chart is a treasure trove of meaning for us to explore and uncover.

"I am grateful to our sparkling lineup of stars for their generosity, vulnerability and brilliance. Thank you to everyone at SiriusXM, Stitcher Studios and Futuro Studios for investing in the next generation of podcasters by providing the essential support and resources necessary to bring these big dreams to life.”

Listen Next pairs the power of SiriusXM with leading, diverse-led production companies to help the next generation of creators break through the audio landscape and launch successful, sustainable podcasting careers.

“It has been so touching and fun to see Isa connect deeply with her guests. Actors, musicians and artists leave her readings more in touch with themselves and their purpose. Her sessions are revealing, warm, whimsical and juicy. Isa is both a deft interviewer and an incisive astrologer, often allowing her love of literature, philosophy and music to inform these revelatory conversations. She’s also very funny,” says Maria Garcia, the Executive Editor of Futuro Studios and the creator of *Stars and Stars. “Isa’s lived experience as a Japanese-Uruguayan American allows for a wide-ranging, empathetic perspective. It’s so heartening to know that SiriusXM believes and invests in creators who bring a lens not often platformed on mainstream networks.”
