KORE and RevX Systems to Discuss the Significance of Streamlining Back-End Solutions

KORE Executive and John D'Angelo to illustrate the importance of end-to-end solutions to maximize ROI

ALPHARETTA, Ga.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- KORE, the people powering IoT innovations and opportunities, today announced that an executive, along with the CEO, of RevX Systems, John D'Angelo, will participate in a webinar that focuses on valuable end-to-end solutions to help KORE's partners scale their business and maximize profitability.

In the webinar, KORE and D'Angelo will share how the Internet-of-Things is driving new business models and thus creating operational challenges – which then forces companies of all sizes to rethink their front and back office processes. KORE and D'Angelo will also discuss how connectivity and application service offerings require that systems be capable of automating customer acquisition, device connectivity, entitling software services, monitoring & metering usage, recurring billing, customer care and much more; while simultaneously bringing to the forefront the need for companies to move beyond spreadsheets and legacy back office systems, to increase the profitably scale of their operation.
