Commentary- Cheryl Beranek, President & CEO of Clearfield

"Ongoing initiatives to expand the number of customers and markets we serve are bearing fruit. While the lumpiness of large-scale deployments can be frustrating, with revenue to our largest customer for the year falling to 6% of sales for the quarter, we are especially pleased that revenues to the broadband community outside of our largest customer are up 18% over last year, including a revenue increase of nearly $900,000 to a single U.S. service provider who had a total of $1.5 million in revenue for the quarter, or 10% of sales. We continue to work closely with these customers to develop new and innovative products for the advancement of these significant deployments."

"The largest driver of revenue growth was sales of our FieldShield pushable fiber delivery platform, with revenue nearing $2 million for the quarter. Highlighting this product line was our recent launch of the FieldShield Y-Adapter. The FieldShield Y-Adapter reduces initial FTTH fiber buildout costs by allowing the provider to distribute a two-fiber plug-and-play solution in a single microduct pathway to a dedicated service access point along the customer lot line."

"Selling, general and administrative costs increased $350,000 in the quarter, which represent targeted hirings and investments in strategic markets and application environments. Included within these investments is the ongoing testing of our fiber termination process within the requirements of Telcordia. This extensive and lengthy testing program is part of the requirements to earn business at Tier 1 service providers. Clearfield is nearing completion of tests for all connector types and all fiber media types, and expects to be among only a handful of communications equipment providers who are certified across the product line."

"The uneven capital spending among broadband carriers has resulted in lower revenues throughout the communications equipment industry. This is due in part to pending mergers as well as the competing access rights between incumbent providers, municipal governments and fiber-specific carriers. While the National Broadband Plan calls out recommendations for improving the utilization of infrastructure to streamline new deployments, the lack of current standards is prevalent challenge throughout the industry. We remain confident these complexities will be overcome in time."

"We are confident in our near- and long-term outlook to protect and distribute fiber into a wide range of applications. As part of this outlook, we are finalizing an agreement for the lease of a new facility to house the offices and expanding U.S. production capacity of the Company. The facility will streamline our ability to rapidly respond to the changing dynamics of our market."
