Apollo Medical Holdings Joins Russell 3000® Index

ALHAMBRA, Calif. and GLENDALE, Calif., June 25, 2018 /PRNewswire/ --Apollo Medical Holdings, Inc. ("ApolloMed" or "the Company") (NASDAQ: AMEH), an integrated population health management company, today announced that it has been added to the Russell 3000® Index and the Russell Microcap Index®. The Company's inclusion occurred as part of the annual reconstitution by FTSE Russell of its U.S. equity indexes and became effective at opening of stock market on June 25, 2018.

Russell indexes are widely used by investment managers and institutional investors for index funds and as benchmarks for active investment strategies. Approximately $9 trillion in assets are benchmarked against Russell's US indexes. Russell indexes are part of FTSE Russell, a leading global index provider.

"We are honored to have been added to the Russell Indexes, which we view as an acknowledgement of the significant progress we are making in building a physician-centric, integrated population health management company at the forefront of the US movement towards value-based care," stated Warren Hosseinion, M.D., Co-Chief Executive Officer of Apollo Medical Holdings.

"We are very pleased with the progress of our long-term growth initiatives. We continue to focus on driving growth and further expanding our integrated care platform which currently includes approximately 1.0 million patients under value-based capitation arrangements," stated Thomas Lam, M.D., Co-Chief Executive Officer of Apollo Medical Holdings.

"As we continue to grow, we will leverage our core strengths of clinical expertise, a proven ability to profitably assume capitated financial risk, and a robust technology platform. We expect that being part of the Russell Index will serve to further elevate ApolloMed's profile among investors, enhance liquidity, and broaden our ownership," stated Kenneth Sim, M.D., Executive Chairman of Apollo Medical Holdings.
