Apollo Names Jaycee Pribulsky as Partner and Chief Sustainability Officer

Pribulsky succeeds Dave Stangis, who will transition to a senior advisor role in 2026

NEW YORK, Oct. 01, 2025 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Apollo Global Management, Inc. (NYSE: APO) today announced that Jaycee Pribulsky has been named Partner and Chief Sustainability Officer (CSO), effective October 1. Pribulsky will lead Apollo's established sustainability strategy, which aims to strengthen long-term value creation and enhance risk management across the firm's integrated investment platform.

Stangis, who has served as Apollo's inaugural CSO since 2021 and helped to design Apollo's Sustainability organization as a robust and long-term management system, will work with Jaycee to support a seamless leadership succession plan. As part of his plans to retire, Stangis will transition into a senior advisor role beginning in 2026. Prior to building out Apollo's sustainability strategy and capabilities, Stangis was the first CSO at The Campbell's Company and served as the first Global Director of Corporate Responsibility at Intel Corporation.

Pribulsky brings more than 20 years of experience spanning sustainability, operations and innovation. Most recently, she was Chief Sustainability Officer at Nike, where she led the Nike, Inc. sustainability strategy across product, operations and the supply chain. She also oversaw sustainability governance and reputation management.

Prior to her CSO role, she led Nike's global footwear sourcing and manufacturing teams. Earlier in her career, she held leadership roles at Bloomberg and Citigroup, focusing on corporate social responsibility, strategy and stakeholder engagement. Jaycee holds an MBA from Columbia Business School and a BA in French and Communications from American University.

"We thank Dave for his significant contributions to developing Apollo's industry leading sustainability program and look forward to his continued partnership in an advisory capacity. Jaycee's cross-sector experience and track record of building durable, business-aligned sustainability programs will continue to advance Apollo's differentiated approach and competitive leadership," said Scott Kleinman, Co-President of Apollo Asset Management.

Jaycee Pribulsky added, "Apollo is known for its scale, capabilities and focus on delivering performance and resilience for clients and portfolio companies. I am excited to build on that foundation working closely with colleagues and partners, using Apollo's sustainability strategy as a practical tool for long-term value creation."

Apollo's sustainability strategy focuses on identifying material risks and opportunities across asset classes, while supporting performance, efficiency and innovation. This approach is fully integrated into Apollo's investment and operating model, reflecting the firm's emphasis on durability and value over time.
