Cummins Shares Growth Message with Investment Community; Reaffirms 2007 Profit Guidance

LAKEWOOD, N.Y.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--

Cummins Inc. (NYSE:CMI) will share its message for creating sustainable earnings growth with members of the investment community today at a conference at the Company's Jamestown Engine Plant.

Members of the Cummins leadership team, including Chairman and CEO Tim Solso; President and Chief Operating Officer Joe Loughrey; Chief Financial Officer Jean Blackwell and each of the Company's operating unit presidents will make presentations to investment analysts. Those in attendance also will be offered tours of the 1 million square foot manufacturing facility that is home to Cummins' heavy-duty engine production, as well as manufacturing for Cummins Emission Solutions.

The conference will be webcast live starting at 9 a.m. today. The link to the webcast can be found on the home page and the investor relations portion of the Company's web site, www.cummins.com.

Cummins' leadership team will outline the Company's efforts to build on three consecutive years of record sales and profits. The presentations at today's conference will center around three basic themes:

- Cummins is well positioned to capture long-term growth trends.
- Cummins' technical leadership gives the Company a significant competitive advantage
- Cummins' global presence is unmatched by others in the industry.

The Company also today reaffirmed its financial guidance for 2007, which it first provided at the time of its second quarter earnings announcement in July. Based on the Company's strong first half and its projections for the remainder of the year, Cummins expects to earn between $7.15 and $7.65 a share.

"The broad strength we are experiencing in our markets around the world has positioned us for the best year in the Company's history, and the future looks extremely bright," Solso said. "We are committed to investing in profitable growth opportunities that allow us to take advantage of our global footprint, technological expertise and commitment to providing our customers with the best possible products and service."
