SARASOTA, Fla., July 02, 2025 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Oragenics, Inc. (NYSE American: OGEN), a clinical-stage biotechnology company pioneering intranasal therapeutics for neurological disorders, today announced the successful closing of its previously announced public offering of Series H Convertible Preferred Stock and Warrants. The Company secured total gross proceeds of approximately $16.5 million.

As part of the transaction, Oragenics issued 660,000 shares of its Series H Convertible Preferred Stock, no par value, together with Warrants to purchase up to 660,000 additional shares of Series H Convertible Preferred Stock. Each unit, consisting of one share of Preferred Stock and one Warrant, was sold at a combined public offering price of $25.00. The Series H Convertible Preferred Stock is convertible into shares of Oragenics' common stock, par value $0.001 per share, based upon a conversion price of $2.50. The Warrants are immediately exercisable and will expire on the fifth anniversary of the closing. The offering closed on July 2, 2025, following satisfaction of customary closing conditions.

The Company intends to use the net proceeds from the offering to advance the clinical development of ONP-002, its intranasal drug candidate for the treatment of concussion (mild traumatic brain injury), support other research and development activities, repay a $3 million bridge note, and fund working capital and general corporate purposes.

"We are pleased to have completed this transaction and are encouraged by the strong investor support, which we believe reflects growing confidence in our science and strategy," said Janet Huffman, Chief Executive Officer of Oragenics. "We anticipate the net proceeds of this offering will allow us to accelerate the advancement of ONP-002 and position Oragenics as a leader in the treatment of concussion through novel intranasal delivery."
