Huntington Expands Wealth Management Services in Wheeling Region

Huntington hires longtime trust officers from JPMorgan Chase

WHEELING, W.Va., June 16 /PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- While other financial institutions serving the northern panhandle of West Virginia and surrounding Ohio and Pennsylvania regions are consolidating wealth management services to far-away cities, Huntington National Bank (Nasdaq: HBAN; www.huntington.com) plans to retain and expand staff at its nearby St. Clairsville, Ohio, office while adding six to 10 new positions in investment services and wealth management in Wheeling by year end.

Huntington Senior Executive Vice President Daniel B. Benhase reports that Huntington plans to have a full-service operation based in Wheeling before the close of 2010, including executive-level hires and support staff offering private banking, wealth management, brokerage, investment portfolio management and insurance.

Among the first to join Huntington are two longtime, Wheeling-based senior investment strategists, who will help launch a dedicated wealth management and private banking office. Vice presidents Robert J. Klug and Mark A. McKeen bring more than 40 years of combined experience to their roles as Huntington trust officers.

"Bringing on board the level of talent and experience we have in Bob and Mark will fast-track our abilities to hit the ground running in the northern Panhandle region," said Benhase. "Our growth in Wheeling is part of Huntington's strategy to deepen our relationships with our customers throughout the Midwest."

Mark A. McKeen

McKeen, vice president and trust officer, brings 25 years of experience to Huntington as a Wheeling-based senior wealth manager.
