

Equifax Announces Webinar to Answer Consumer Questions about Potential COVID-19 Impact on Credit

Webinar will discuss steps and resources for consumers to help protect their credit and manage finances during COVID-19 pandemic

ATLANTA, April 14, 2020 /PRNewswire/ -- Equifax Inc. (NYSE: EFX) will address the economic impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on consumers with a webinar focused on providing information and resources to help them make informed financial decisions about their credit and finances.

At Equifax, we strive to help people live their financial best and are committed to providing information to help consumers protect their credit and their family's financial health. We recently launched the Equifax COVID + Credit Financial Resource Center to provide information and insights to help serve consumers who have questions about their credit and finances, especially in light of the impact to the economy during the COVID-19 pandemic.

In the upcoming webinar, "You Ask. Bev Answers," Beverly Anderson, President of Global Consumer Solutions at Equifax, will answer questions based on her years of experience in the consumer finance industry. Joining her will be renowned personal financial expert llyce Glink, CEO of Best Money Moves. Together, they will help consumers navigate the current challenges they may face within their credit and personal financial health.

"The economic and societal impacts of COVID-19 are a major concern for individuals, families and businesses across the globe," said Beverly Anderson, President of Global Consumer Solutions at Equifax. "It will take time to understand COVID-19's full impact, but as we work to overcome this challenging event, consumer financial literacy and healthy financial habits can help our economic recovery."

This webinar follows the recent annual Financial Literacy Survey conducted by Equifax, which showed that only 14% of respondents feel positive about the 2020 economic outlook and nearly three-fourths (72%) are concerned about the effect COVID-19 will have on their financial situation.

The "You Ask. Bev Answers" webinar will help people get the information and resources they need to protect their credit and finances. Anderson and Glink will also be taking consumer questions via chat.
