The partnership will allow POSCO to support and grow its established U.S. customer base while ensuring that its products meet U.S. trade and origin requirements. The collaboration represents a model of how allies can deepen industrial cooperation under fair and transparent trade principles, and aligns with U.S. policy goals to strengthen domestic industry and attract foreign investment. Cleveland-Cliffs expects the ultimate outcome of this MoU to be highly accretive to shareholders. UBS is acting as financial advisors to Cliffs and Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP is serving as legal counsel.

A formal announcement on a definitive agreement is expected in the fourth quarter of 2025 or first quarter in 2026 with closing expected in 2026.

Celso Goncalves, Cleveland-Cliffs' Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer, stated: "Our partnership with POSCO represents a meeting of two industrial champions at a pivotal time for global manufacturing. We have long admired POSCO from afar and look forward to partnering with them as we take the next major transformative step for Cleveland-Cliffs. We are aligned in our vision for a stronger, self-reliant, and mutually beneficial industrial base across both nations. We look forward to welcoming POSCO to the Cleveland-Cliffs family and leveraging the combined resources and strengths of both companies."

Jutae Lee, President of POSCO Holdings, said: "We are delighted to enter into this important partnership with Cleveland-Cliffs, the premier steel company in America. This collaboration represents a meaningful step for POSCO to make a major investment in the United States and leverage all of Cliffs current capabilities. We look forward to supplying our current customers American-made steel through this partnership and maintaining the trusted relationships we have established in the United States."
