Fiserv Completes First Tokenized Transactions via Accel Debit Payments Network

- Accel is one of the first debit payment networks to enable tokenized transactions
- Fiserv enables its financial institution clients to deliver solutions to meet consumer demand for secure payments with tokenization
- Tokenization provides additional level of security to debit card transactions

BROOKFIELD, Wis.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Fiserv, Inc. (NASDAQ: FISV), a leading global provider of financial services technology solutions, announced today that it has completed its first tokenized transactions via its Accel® debit payments network.

“Fiserv offers one of the first debit payment networks to enable tokenization, which is required for transactions such as those conducted using Apple Pay™,” said Kevin Gregoire, president, Financial Institutions Group, Fiserv. “Apple Pay is just one example of the rapid changes in the payments landscape, and it is important for Fiserv to equip our clients to deliver the capabilities consumers expect at an accelerated pace. We anticipate that tokenization will play an increasing role in the debit payments industry and Accel is well positioned to accommodate further developments.”

Tokenization replaces the traditional payment card account number (PAN) with a unique string of digital numbers, or token. Because tokens replace PAN numbers, sensitive account information is never shared, thereby providing an additional level of security for debit purchases. For more information on how tokenization works, please see the blog “Answers to Your Questions about Tokenization” on Fiserv.com.
