Terra Tech Subsidiary, Edible Garden, Has Begun Assembling New 5 Acre Hydroponic Cultivation Facility

Irvine, July 8, 2013 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) --Terra Tech Corp (TRTC) is pleased to announce they have begun assembling their five-acre hydroponic production facility in Belvedere, New Jersey. Terra Tech has completed grading the property, setting the foundation and is currently assembling the structural frame. Upon completion the facility will be a fully automated, high-tech, commercial scale hydroponic center capable of producing some of the cleanest, freshest and most energy-efficient produce in the Northeast. At full production and current pricing, Terra Tech expects to generate up to $10 million in annual revenue from the five-acre greenhouse. The company anticipates finishing construction and producing its first crop by year-end 2013.

"We have made great progress since breaking ground in early June," said Ken Vande Vrede, COO of Terra Tech. "We have worked aggressively to fast track this project and are fortunate to have partnered with Venlo Greenhouse, an industry veteran to manage the construction process for Terra Tech."

Progress on the five-acre construction can be viewed on the companies Facebook page: <https://www.facebook.com/terratechcorp>. Edible Garden plans on cultivating their current lineup of hydroponic and potted herbs as well as introducing several new selections of hydroponic produce including varieties of living lettuce, kale and more. The company is currently testing hydroponically cultivated cucumbers and eggplant at GroRite's Lincoln Park, New Jersey location.

"We are excited about finishing this year out and completing several key steps in our companies growth," explains Derek Peterson, CEO of Terra Tech. "We expect Palm Creek to have their first harvest completed by September and we are pushing to complete our new flagship facility before year end. In addition we are pleased to read that many retailers prefer produce from local growers giving urban farms like Edible Garden a competitive advantage over imported products."

Edible Garden, a premier brand of local and sustainably grown produce is available at close to 400 major grocery store chains such as Shoprite, Food Emporium and others throughout New Jersey, New York, Delaware, Maryland, Connecticut, and Pennsylvania. The new five-acre facility will allow Edible Garden to expand into additional markets as well as introduce new products to the market.
