Transaction Information

Greeley and Hansen, a leading water infrastructure engineering firm known for creating some of the world's largest and first-of-its-kind water and wastewater treatment facilities in the U.S. and Latin America, has been acquired by TYLin, a globally recognized, full-service infrastructure consulting firm.

The acquisition of Greeley and Hansen will advance TYLin's strategy to leverage its current water sector capabilities to help transform TYLin into a leader in the water market in the Americas. TYLin's prowess in infrastructure, coupled with Greeley and Hansen's strong industry-wide reputation in water and wastewater engineering technologies and construction, will create a powerful force as the companies strive to improve the quality of life in the communities its clients serve.

Terms of the transaction were not disclosed. However, a press release with more information was issued by TYLin and can be accessed here on their website.

Roth acted as financial advisor to Greeley and Hansen on the transaction.

About Greeley and Hansen

Founded in Chicago in 1914, Greeley and Hansen is an award-winning global engineering, architecture, and consulting firm solely dedicated to providing sustainable engineering solutions for a broad range of water and wastewater challenges. With more than 100 years of proven civil and environmental engineering experience in all phases of project development and implementation, the firm has grown to become a premier global provider of comprehensive services in the water sector. With more than 20 offices, Greeley and Hansen is dedicated to designing better urban environments worldwide. Greeley and Hansen's first client — Metropolitan Water Reclamation District of Greater Chicago — remains a key client today, 108 years later, along with a stellar roster of other world-class municipal water utilities and industrial clients.
